Personal Experiences (team member[s] and event):

Investigator: Donna Clevenger

Disembodied voice heard by the team in the Front Bedroom near Gary during an EVP session. At the time, it was loud enough for all of us to hear, but I was unable to capture it on my digital recorder. It sounded female in nature. The message is unknown.

Investigator: Donna Clevenger

Pressure felt around my head (as if in an airplane) upon entering the Master Bedroom. For me personally, I will either feel energy vibrations or I will feel this sort of pressure when a spirit is present. Although these feelings cannot be scientifically proven, they are based on my personal experiences. It was also stated by the client that the grandfather who is B's husband had passed away in this room. His ashes are also kept in the living room.

Investigator: Gary Wood

Gary heard disembodied voices and conversations in all areas of the residence. During this time, Gary felt goose bumps or energy vibrations. Unfortunately, the disembodied voices were not picked up on the recordings.

Investigator: Pam Czarnecki

While conducting an EVP session in the Master Bath, Pam felt as if someone or something was standing behind her. At this time, there was continuous KII Meter activity in response to questions asked which indicated intelligent conversation.

General Comments: Donna Clevenger

I captured several EVPs and Ghost Box messages. They were both male and female in nature. They appear to be benevolent. They could be transient (traveling from home to home, interacting with those who are sensitive enough to notice them) or possibly loved ones of the client and her family. The only names given were "Kal" and a nickname of "Snoogie."

There was one EVP (not included in the reveal clips) that was very faint and said, "I Love This House." It was female. I did not include it with the reveal clips because it was too faint for an untrained ear to hear. When you're used to listening for EVP, you tend to pick out the faint ones easily, but it's not so easily heard by others. There's also one that says, "I'm home" and it's the same voice I heard on the faint one before it. This one is included in the reveal clips.

I've included three clips captured by Pam Czarnecki during the 1st investigation. I analyzed them and reversed two. The reversal of two audio files revealed additional messages and I spliced them together to form one audio file. One file reveals the name, "Mr. Hesby," but it seems that the male is calling him out and that Mr. Hesby is not his name. The other reversal says, "Hey... Nephew!" It is female in nature and hopefully it will mean something to K and/or B.

Summary and Conclusions: Hopefully the names revealed during the investigation hold meaning for our client. If not, GCPS will lean towards the two being transient in nature. They may need help or possibly belong to the former homeowner and still visit the client's residence because it's familiar to them. They mean no harm, but simply are attracted to those who can see or hear them and desire to interact with them. There were no negative communications or incidences captured or experienced by the investigators and the family pet seemed at ease during the investigations. If the client wishes for those in spirit to exit their residence, they may try to forcefully, but with respect ask them to leave. Explain to them that this is no longer their place of residence and that they need to move on to their next level of existence. The client may also wish to give a house blessing.
